

Postponement of TEDxKathmanduUniversity 2025

Release Date: 9/11/2025

The current situation in Nepal has posed challenges that affect daily life, mobility, and institutional operations. In addition, as per the official notice from Kathmandu University, all academic and university activities will only resume after Chhath. These developments make it difficult to ensure a safe, smooth, and impactful event for both our speakers and audience.

Although the organizing team was fully prepared and enthusiastic to host TEDxKathmanduUniversity on 17th September 2025, the circumstances have compelled us to postpone the event. The well-being of our speakers, attendees, and partners remains our highest priority, and we believe this decision reflects our responsibility to all involved.

TEDxKathmanduUniversity will be rescheduled following the reopening of the university. The revised dates and program details will be communicated in due course. The Organizing Committee reaffirms its commitment to delivering an inspiring and impactful TEDx experience once conditions are favorable.

We extend our heartfelt condolences to all those who have experienced loss. We also wish to express our sincere gratitude to our community, partners, and supporters for their patience, understanding, and continued support during this time.
